Inside The Numbers

Both men connected at 28 percent, but Opetaia was by far the busier fighter, throwing 129 more punches and landing 34 more than Mikaelien. He also held a 46-21 edge in body punches landed. Mikaelien had his moments, landing several sneaky rights and stunning Opetaia in the seventh. It did not last. With Mikaelien trying to lock up his arms in the ninth, Opetaia worked free and landed a series of shots that left Mikaelien out on his feet and held up by the ropes halfway through the round. He never hit the canvas, but the referee ruled him unable to continue, making Opetaia the first fighter to stop Mikaelien.
